

THE DONG-A ILBO.

SOUL, KOREA, WEDNESDAY, MAY 14, 1951.
COURAGE AND CO-OPERATION.
BY DR. PHILIP J. JACOBSON.

The Koreans have seldom shown the venturesome spirit that distinguishes the European people from the Asiatic races. I do not believe that the latter are cowardly or over cautious, but that they are lacking in self reliance, largely due to the want of the knowledge of truth. If the Koreans only knew the truth they would have confidence in their country, their race and their future. It is my purpose in this letter to point out some of the reasons why they should not feel dependent and resign themselves to misery and humiliation.

God has given them some ninety thousand square miles of diversified territory, rich in minerals. The fertile valleys and plains from which an ample supply of food and fuel can be raised for their sustenance. The salubrious climate, with proper observation of the law of sanitation will keep them healthy. They should rejoice that they have their own language, their own culture, their own history and above all, a homogenous race of people with common interests. There are many countries in the world which are not as fortunate as Korea in these respects. No matter what foreign power may control Korea it can not undo the work of God. Korea will always be Korea, and the descendants of the people now living, will always be there. It will be different from the case of the American Indians who had not only lost their land but their entire race had practically disappeared. True, the ruling power of Korea at the present time tries to solve the problem by assimilating the Koreans to be their loyal subjects, thus to efface the demarcation between two nationalities, but history tells us that it is an impossible task. The only case in which the amalgamation of two or more nations brought about a happy result is the union of Scotland and Wales with England. This was due to the geographical reasons and the comparatively small number of people involved.
